

SWING CHART ASX50

For ASX Market Close 5/4/2024

XJO (ASX Top 200 INDEX)

Weekly Market Snapshot

Market close April 5, 2024

The S&P/ASX 200 Index fell 0.6% to around 7,770 on Friday, erasing gains from the previous session following a sharp selloff on Wall Street overnight as US Federal Reserve officials raised doubts on the path of potential interest rate cuts this year.

The March S&P/ASX rebalances mark a pivotal event in the financial calendar, with 2024's adjustments impacting seven indices and 128 companies. Inclusion into major benchmarks such as the XJO (ASX 200) or All Ordinaries (All Ords) brings advantages like increased investor interest, increased liquidity (buying and selling), and trading volume (turnover).

The rise of passive investing and benchmark or index investing, such as ETF investing, has amplified the impact of stock movements surrounding index changes, with trends indicating that stocks showing strong performance rise in rankings while underperforming ones are phased out.
